

COST OF AQUEDUCT ISLAND.

A Blow Aimed at the Old Aqueduct Board for Suspecting They are Not to Return for the... The Board of Aqueduct Commissioners...

Messrs. Fish, Ridgway, and Harris, the eminent reformers placed upon the Board of new Aqueduct Commissioners through the agency of those other great reformers, O'Brien, Equire, and Flynn, have had in preparation for some time a broadside intended to forever annihilate the Board as constituted at present.

The report starts off with a vigorous arraignment of the ex-secretary and his assistants, as follows: No voucher or copies of vouchers for any of the items of expenditure...

This is followed by some interesting figures, which certainly show that the expenses of the condemnation of land thus the aqueduct have been almost entirely unaccounted for.

The following is a list of some of the items of expenditure: The New York Aqueduct Commission, 1895-1896...

A YOUNG NEIGHBORS LETTER.

A Matter-of-Fact Business Letter to his Father and Letters to his Sister and the Girl he Had Asked to be his Wife.

Morris Finn, manufacturer of cloaks at 13 and 15 White street, returned from his place of business to his home, 2092 Fifth avenue, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. He had come from the city to see his father, leaving his 19-year-old son, Jacob Leonard Finn, at home.

His father, Mr. Finn, had never been so late in coming to business. The father rapped loudly upon the door of his son's sleeping room, but got no answer.

Then follows a most matter-of-fact statement of the young man's life, which was carried on without his assistance, and the letter closes as follows: I am not at all surprised that the above are not attempts at giving orders, but merely suggestions to be acted upon at your discretion.

There are some seven or eight of my pictures in Willie's room. I have just got them, and after taking one, I have left the others in the room.

In the table drawer were found two other letters, one addressed to the actor Leoni, and the other to the actress, Miss Lillian Russell. They are dated Aug. 31, and are as follows: Dear Leoni: I am about to receive a check for $100,000.

HANLAN BEATS COURTNEY.

No Question as to Who Won, But Some Doubt as to the Winner's Time.

Hanlan and Courtney rowed a three-mile race on Jamaica Bay yesterday afternoon, and Hanlan won. Bets of $100 to $10 on Hanlan had found takers, and the result of the race was not a surprise.

The official time of the race was 19 minutes and 30 seconds. Courtney's time was 20 minutes and 15 seconds. Hanlan's time was 19 minutes and 15 seconds.

Hanlan was five or six lengths ahead at the start. Courtney appeared to lose heart. Near the end of the race Courtney was thrown overboard. He saved himself by going under.
